THE OWNERS OF this Park Avenue abode had the ample space that most New York City dwellers only dream about, which was perfect for their family of five. In fact, the apartment is a full 5,400 square feet—the rewarding result of combining two separate apartments.

The couple's personal living quarters were nice and roomy too. The home's master bedroom, dressing room, and master bath added up to a joint 1,000 square feet. But despite the generous dimensions, the inviting aura the homeowners adored eluded them since the three spaces were separate rooms rather than one sprawling suite. Lee J. Stahl of the Renovated Home created a bedroom suite as matched for admiration as it is relaxation.

The biggest challenge Stahl faced during the renovation was working around the existing building structure, which could not be moved. Part of the solution was a complete gutting.

In terms of the bathroom, the gut required the combination of what were previously a kitchen, a maid's room, and a maid's bathroom to build the final 340-square-foot finished product.

The real fun began with incorporating the made-to-order, one-of-a-kind design elements. The Renovated Home crafted custom cabinetry, while the rest of the bathroom was outfitted with custom-cut Calacatta white marble in the wallcovering and flooring accents. The finishing touches include a gorgeous Waterworks clawfoot tub and a brand-new Kallista sink outfitted with a Waterworks faucet. The result was a transformation that has the features and the floor plan for the whole family to enjoy. «
